SCORES A VICTORY

Wu's Troops Push Back Hunanese—He Asks Heads Of Three

(Staff Wire To The China Press)

Hankow, August 15.—Because of reports that Hupeh insurgents were organizing along the Yangtze to take his life, Wang Chuan-yuan, retired Tuchun of Hupeh, had to return to Hankow and go North by way of the Peking-Hankow Railway. He called on Tiao Kun, warlord of Chihli on Saturday and left on the same day for Tientsin where he is now staying in the former German Settlement. No reply has come to Wu Pei-fu's ultimatum to the Hunan-Hupeh forces that they stop their advance or be smashed by his 30,000 seasoned veterans.

General Hsiao Yao-nan, the new Tuchun of Hupeh, held a conference with officials and merchants of Hankow and Wuchang, Saturday, and asked for a loan of $3,000,000 from the local Chambers of Commerce. He stated that should Hunan fail to understand the good intentions of his superior, General Wu Pei-fu, who had come to Wuchang for "armed mediation," Hupeh had no alternative but to resort to arms.

The military preparation needed funds and he would offer the receipts of the southern section of the Peking-Hankow Railway for the loan which would be redeemed within eight months and over 15 percent interest. The Chambers of Commerce have consented to bring up the matter at a meeting of their directors.

WANT TO CONFISCATE
The historical Hungyehou was the scene of an impressive mass meeting on Sunday noon when the people of Hupeh passed resolutions demanding the confiscation of Wang Chuan-yuan's personal property to indemnify the damage done to the people during the recent civil strife and demanding genuine self-government without interference on the part of militarists.

General Wu Pei-fu, the High Inspecting-General of the two Hu Provinces, is now in Sienning-hsien, following the encounter with the attacking Hunanese on Saturday at Chaoiehiao. In his communication with Peking, it is significant that he does not make use of his title at all. He has made two demands on Peking which have met with popular approval: the dismissal of Sun Chuan-fang, Wang Chuan-yuan's aide-de-camp, as Inspector of the Upper Yangtze and to deny power to Tang Shan-ming to mediate with the Hunanese for peace. Both demands are said to have aroused the wrath of the Fengtien warlord, Chang Tso-lin.

The post of deputy Inspector-General of Chihli, Shantung and Honan, left vacant by the promotion of General Wu, is a bone of contention among the Northern militarists. Chang Tso-lin wants it filled by his man, Chao TL. Tuchun of Honan; Premier Chin Yun-peng favors his brother, Chin Yung-ao, while Tiao Kun, warlord of Chihli insists upon the appointment of Feng Yu-hsiang, the Christian commander. ADD WAR

The selection of their successors in office is said to be now under consideration.

MARCH OF EVENTS

BY BRUCE HOPPER

SILESIA, for a thousand years the firebrand of discord between the Teuton and the Slav, has leaped into prominence on the map for a second time as an impediment to the marriage of true minds in Great Britain and France.

The triangle of 9,000 square miles in South-Eastern Germany, called Upper Silesia, is one of the richest bits of country in the world, and was once the brightest jewel in the diadem of the Holy Roman Empire. Coal, one of the greatest sources of world power, can be mined there at the rate of 50 million tons annually for 300 years. It produces 20 percent of the world's zinc, and has perfected networks of railways and vast primeval forests which have been guarded against spoliation by German laws of conservation.

It is not strange that Protestant Teutons and Catholic Poles have contested this borderland strip, to which age long feud they have added the rancor and hatred which characterize racial and religious animosity.

PRIOR to 1138 Silesia belonged to the Polish crown. It then became an independent principality under the influence of Frederick Barbarossa. Two German dukes were set up, who invited German colonization of both upper and lower Silesia, with the result that by the end of the 13th century the entire duchy was Teutonized. In 1355 the petty princes swore allegiance to German and then Slavic Bohemia, and in 1550 it passed under Austrian domination. The three Silesian wars, 1740-63, by which Frederick the Great of Prussia confirmed his high-handed seizure of the duchy from Maria Theresa, ended Silesia's voice in politics. It is significant to note that England sent troops to support Prussia in that war, and France backed Marshal Daun who led the armies of the Austrian queen.

AGAIN Britain and France have reached a deadlock over the ownership of Silesia. The Supreme Council exhausted the bag of arbitration tricks, and passed the puzzle on to the experts who applied the tape measure, the rules of the scientific thumb and hereditary privileges. In spite of Britain's protest the experts found 16 distinct economic zones which could be separated, but not divided into smaller units.

But to draw the fatal line between what is to be German, and what Polish, is a feat of mathematics beyond the ability of the Supreme Council. It is now up to the League of Nations to trace the dissecting line, which will probably resemble the path of that prehistoric monster which once crawled down the landscape of middle Europe.

IT is comforting to the world to know that France and Britain have both agreed to abide by the ruling of the League, which is a gracious spirit considering that the Germans and Poles had their say in the matter by a futile plebiscite last March. The only thing proved by the meeting of the Supreme Council is that Lloyd George prefers milk to beefsteaks, and Premier Briand is afraid of the sacred cow's horns. If they meet again we may expect an Euphrasian epigram likening Silesia to a certain hen which was reputed to have laid golden eggs during the short period of her fecundity.

At least the decisions of the League of Nations in the past indicate that the Polish-German line may never be drawn in Silesia, for that influential court of last appeal has the habit of making international law out of bits under dispute. To the category of Danzig with its famous corridor, Fiume, Smyrna and the Dardanelles may be added a curious playground for everybody called Triangular Silesia.

LESS ego in the cosmos of high office is expected of President Harding than was latterly exhibited by President Wilson. And when the president designates Mr. Hughes, Secretary of State, as head of the American delegation to the Pacific conference the public says "I told you so," but feels relieved.

Many good democrats firmly believe that if President Wilson had delegated his power to Secretary Lansing at Paris the Democratic party would not have gone down in avalanche, America would not have continued in an inactive state of war

Disarmament Of Germany Final Conference Topic; Would Raise The Sanctions

Economic First, Say French Who Assert The Necessity Of Occupying Cities Until The Reparation Terms Are Completed

(Reuters' Service)

Paris, August 13.—The concluding session of the Supreme Council today discussed the question of the disarmament of Germany. Marshal Foch submitted a resolution, which had been unanimously adopted by the Inter-Allied Military Commission, proposing the continuation of the Commission's control in Germany.

A long discussion ensued, and, while opinion was unanimous that a watch on Germany must be maintained, there were differences on the subject of the number, duration and headquarters of the commissions.

A resolution was subsequently adopted, maintaining the commissions, but contemplating a gradual cutting down. The Council also passed a resolution raising the economic sanctions conditionally upon Germany's meeting all her obligations by August 31, but the military sanctions will be maintained.

Lord Curzon declared that Great Britain did not contemplate that the sanctions should remain in force three months after the acceptance of the ultimatum. He suggested that, as Germany had given proof of her goodwill, a term should be fixed on for the occupation, with a progressive withdrawal of troops.

M. Briand justified the continued occupation of Duesseldorf, Ruhrort and Duisburg, on the ground that Germany had not yet displayed any tendency to carry out the reparations terms without an Allied demonstration of force. Otherwise, he said, France was anxious to abandon the occupation as soon as possible.

The question of the reduction of the cost of the armies of occupation was also discussed, and this was eventually referred to a special financial and military committee, which will report to the next meeting of the Supreme Council.

Ad Valorem Duties May Be Based On U.S. Wholesale Price

(Reuters' Service)
Washington, August 13.—The principle of American valuation in assessing the new tariff duties on imported merchandise, as agreed upon by the Republican Party, would assess the ad valorem duties as calculated on the basis of the American wholesale selling price on all imports where comparable competitive articles of domestic manufacture are to be found.

It is believed that the principle will apply to 75 percent of America's imports, which would otherwise be assessed at a selling price comparable with the competitive imported commodity, or at the value of the article in the country of origin, plus expenses to an American port, plus a profit of not less than 16 percent. Otherwise, the basis would revert to the production costs, plus the expenses of shipment to America.

Following differences with her husband, Mrs. Mayo left him and consulted a lawyer. Later in the day she returned to her home in an automobile with detectives. The limousine, with engine running, waited outside. On gaining admittance to the apartment, Mrs. Mayo snatched up the child, made her way to the ground floor and was whirled away in the auto.

BRITAIN OFFERS IRELAND DOMINION STATUS BUT DE VALERA IS DEMURRING

SMUTS LETTER CAUSES IRISH FURORE

Ulster Premier Says Status Quo Must Be Preserved And That Citizenship In United Kingdom Is Only Idea Of Constituents In North Ireland

(Reuters' Service)

London, August 14.—The text of the Government's proposals for an Irish settlement, made by Mr. Lloyd George to Mr. de Valera on July 20, of the Irish leader's reply of August 10, and of Mr. Lloyd George's rejoinder of August 13, is published. The proposals, which are signed by the Premier and are described as merely a broad outline of an attempted settlement, are prefaced by a statement in which the Government dwells on its desire to end the long-standing unhappy divisions between Britain and Ireland. It points out that there is no part of the world where Irishmen have made their homes but suffers from ancient feuds.

The Government proposes that Ireland forthwith assume the status of a Dominion, whereby she will enjoy complete autonomy in taxation and finance, and maintain her own courts of law and judges, her own military forces for home defense, her own constabulary and police, and take over matters relating to postal service, education, land, agriculture, mines, forestry, housing, labor, unemployment, transport, trade, public health, health insurance and liquor traffic.

DOMINION'S STATUS

To sum up: Ireland shall exercise all the powers on which the autonomy of the self-governing Dominions is based, subject only to the following conditions which the Government regards as vital to the welfare and safety of both Britain and Ireland:

(1) It is essential for the protection of Britain's communications that the Navy alone control the seas around Ireland and Britain, and that Ireland accord it essential needs in Irish harbors and coasts.

(2) The Irish Territorial Force shall numerically conform to the military establishments in other parts of the United Kingdom.

(3) All necessary facilities shall be afforded for the development of defense and communications by air.

(4) The hope is expressed that Ireland shall voluntarily contribute proportionately to her wealth to the naval, military and air forces of the Empire, for which it is assumed that voluntary recruitment will be permitted throughout Ireland, particularly for the famous Irish regiments which so long and gallantly served his Majesty throughout the world.

NO TRADE RESTRICTIONS

(5) The British and Irish Governments shall agree to impose no protective duties or other restrictions upon the flow of trade and commerce between all parts of the United Kingdom.

(6) Ireland shall assume responsibility for her share of the present National Debt and war pensions, which, in default of agreement, shall be determined by an independent arbitrator appointed from within the Dominions.

The Government proposes that the conditions for a settlement in accordance with the foregoing principles be embodied in a treaty to which the British and Irish Parliaments shall give effect. The settlement must allow for full recognition of the existing powers of the Northern Parliament, which cannot be abrogated without the latter's consent.

DE VALERA'S REPLY

Mr. de Valera's reply, dated from "The Office of the President; Dublin Mansion House," and described as an official translation (apparently from Gaelic), confirms the opinion previously expressed to Mr. Lloyd George that the Dail Eireann could not, and the Irish people would not, accept the foregoing Government proposals. Mr. de Valera declares that stipulations render the proposals self-contradictory. He proceeds to assert the claim for Irish independence, and says that Dominion status for Ireland would be illusory because the freedom of the Dominions is not the result of legal enactments or treaties, but is due to the immense distances separating them from Britain, which make English interference impracticable.

Most explicit guarantees, therefore, including "a Dominion's acknowledged right to secede," would be necessary to secure equal freedom for Ireland. He and his colleagues would have been ready to recommend a certain treaty of free association with the British Commonwealth group as with a partial League of Nations, adds Mr. de Valera, as assured that it would secure the allegiance of the present dissenting minority, to meet whose sentiment alone this step could have been contemplated. He declares his readiness to negotiate treaties and agreements as regards the mutual limitation of armaments, facilitation of air and railway communications, and smooth commercial intercourse; but such treaties must first be ratified by the national legislature and then by the Irish people as a whole. He expresses willingness to leave the question of Ireland's liability for her share in the National Debt to two arbitrators, with an independent third, alternatively, in the latter case a nominee by the President of the United States.

SAYS STAND ASIDE

He is confident that a complete peaceful reconciliation can be effected by the South with the North of Ireland if Britain stands aside; but if an immediate settlement is unobtainable he is willing that the question be submitted to external arbitration. He concludes that his Government "is thus ready to meet the British Government in everything reasonable and just."

Mr. Lloyd George's reply, dated August 13, declares that no British Government can compromise upon the claim that it should acknowledge Ireland's right to secede from allegiance to the King. "The history of the two islands for many centuries sufficiently proves that their destinies are indissolubly linked. The British Government cannot consent to refer questions concerning Britain and Ireland alone to foreign arbitration." The Premier's reply proceeds to express profound gladness at Mr. de Valera's agreement that Northern Ireland cannot be coerced, and declares that the conditions proposed for a settlement do not contain a derogation of Ireland's status as a Dominion, or a desire for British ascendancy or impairment of Ireland's national ideals. It concludes in the hope that Mr. de Valera will accept in principle the proposals made in a sincere desire to achieve peace. It expresses readiness to discuss their application in detail whenever such acceptance is communicated.

CABINET DRAFTS REPLY

London, August 14.—Mr. de Valera, Messrs. Arthur Griffiths and Michael Collins arrived at the Mansion House, Dublin, on Sunday morning in buoyant spirits, which indicated that neither Mr. de Valera's letter nor Mr. Lloyd George's reply had worsened the situation. The Irish Cabinet met today to draft the text of the Irish rejoinder, which reply will be submitted to Dail Eireann on Tuesday.

In Government circles in Dublin the opinion is expressed that Sinn Fein may be persuaded to consider the advisability of accepting the proffered Dominion status. The fact that Mr. de Valera has gone as far as he has in the negotiations while knowing Mr. Lloyd George's irrevocable decision concerning secession is regarded as ground for further hopes.

London, August 13.—The text is officially published of a letter from General Smuts to Mr. de Valera, dated August 4. The South African Premier says he has done his best to secure a meeting between Mr. de Valera and Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, but the latter was immovable in his unwillingness to meet him. The Premier says he has done his best to secure a meeting between Mr. de Valera and Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, but the latter was immovable in his unwillingness to

Wu Pei-fu Says End War; Hunan Says End Tuchunate

Lien-chun, Tuchun of Kiri, originated from the trial of the latter's Oboe of Staff, who was arrested by General Chang about a month ago on the charge of having supplied Semenov with a large quantity of arms and ammunition while General Sun was Tuchun of Hellingkung. The trial, it is said, showed that General Sun was concerned in the transaction.

HUPEH STILL FOR WAR

Peking, August 12.—Though General Chao Heng-ti, Tuchun of Hunan, is apparently satisfied with the recent developments in Hupeh, and has announced his troops will immediately be withdrawn from that province, the Hupehese insurgents themselves seem still to be in a recalcitrant frame of mind. A movement in favor of self-government is reported to be under way, and promises trouble for the new Tuchun before he has fairly commenced his official duties.

According to a Japanese official telegram, General Chang Tso-ping, one of the leaders of the "Hupei People's Army," has intimated to a leading member of the Hupei gentry that he will resist General Tsiang's appointment, with force if necessary, adding that he means to rid Hupeh of its Tuchun and established self-government. To what extent General Chang is actuated by personal ambition is matter for speculation, but the expulsion of General Wang was evidently not his sole aim in attacking Hupeh.

Another telegram received in the same quarter states that in order to meet the situation General Hsiao has drafted a series of proposals which he intends to discuss with General Wu Pei-fu. These are of a conciliatory nature, and include separation of the civil and military power, the appointment of Admiral Tang Hsiang-ming as Civil Governor, and of General Kung Keng to command the Hupei defense forces, under General Hsiao, who would retain his office as Tuchun.

Contrary to the report that General Wang had left Hupeh to Kinkiang, the Japanese authorities here are informed that he removed from his yamen at Wuchang only yesterday, going on board a Chinese warship in the river. His family have already arrived in Shantung.

Hupei People's Leader May Resist New Tuchun

(China Press Correspondence) Peking, August 13.—General Chang Tso-ping, the Hupei General, under whose leadership the movement for the ousting of Wang Chang-yuan was organized and carried out, is definitely determined that there shall be no Tuchun or Super Tuchun over Hupeh, unless the Hupei people shall show very certainly that they support the appointees. Telegrams from Hankow give the message from Chang Tso-ping to the Hupei gentry in Hankow, in which the General declares that he will not support General Hsiao Yoo-nan as the new Tuchun of Hupeh, and that if the Peking authorities insist that Hsiao take up the job, he, General Chang, will begin the fighting again. He is determined to get provincial autonomy for Hupeh.

In a letter to the Japanese legation, that was mailed from Hankow some seven or eight days ago, Chang Tso-ping carried out this same idea, showing that he is following a consistent policy. On the other hand, telegrams from Hankow state General Hsiao Yoo-nan who accepted office as Tuchun yesterday morning, says that he will do nothing until Wu Pei-fu arrives in Hankow, and that thereafter he is sure that some kind of a compromise can be brought about between himself and Chang Tso-ping.

WU PEI-FU QUIET

Wu Pei-fu is keeping quiet on the subject of the Super-Tuchunate. Although the statements issued by Tsao Kun would indicate that General Wu had made up his mind to accept it, he is not believed that he will accept although it is pointed out that his position in the Yangtze is undisputed and that he can do as he wishes.

Chang Tso-ping is scheduled to arrive in Peking on August 15 or 16, according to telegrams from Mukden. His special trains have already been ordered. He has definitely abandoned the Mongolian expedition, and has been sending supplies and materials back to Anhui. Trouble is brewing for him in Jehol. Chiang Kwei-ti, the Tutor of Jehol has declared that he will not allow any troops of Chang Tso-ping to come into Jehol and that Chang must keep his hands off Inner Mongolia. Then, when Chang Tso-ping demanded that they give an Irish promotion to Chiang Kwei-ti, by making him High Inspecting General of the National Army, Chiang informed the Government that he was the best judge as to when he should be removed and his troops sent in a manifesto that they would fight to the limit for him. He is in a strong position for his troops are well-fed and paid up to date.

Wu Sends Ultimatum To Recalcitrant Army

(Reuter's Pacific Service) Hankow, August 14.—General Wu Pei-fu has sent a representative to the insurgents with an ultimatum, which expires tonight, declaring that, unless they come to terms, he himself will lead a large force immediately to punish them. General Wu commands fully 30,000 troops in this district.

According to an authentic source, it is reported that Seuchen troops are massing; also that General Wu Pei-fu has returned to Hankow after a short visit to Kinkow. The Peking-Hankow Railway is specially instructed to expedite the transit of further troops to Hankow.

General Hsiao Yoo-nan, the new Tuchun of Hupeh, finding that the coffers had been emptied by the former Tuchun, General Wang Chuan-yuan, is applying to the Chinese banks and the local Chamber of Commerce for the immediate payment of $800,000 for military purposes.

Ichang Near Ideal Of No Soldier Parasites

(Reuter's Pacific Service) Ichang, August 10.—This city has not, so far, become involved in any way in the fighting that has broken out between Hupeh and Hunan, but it is just a question how long that condition of affairs may be maintained. There are reliable reports that there has been fighting in the neighborhood of Kungnan, in the southeast of the province, and that, though the Northerners at first claimed victory, the Hunanese have made considerable progress and defeated the troops under General Wang Tu-ching. Troops have been moved from Iu, supposedly to meet the menace from Kungnan, and now there are no soldiers left there. But before they left they made the people pay up, and a sum of $10,000 had to be paid over, of course under the usual threat of looting the town.

Two days ago a telegram came from Tuchun Wang to say that he had no funds, and the magistrate here was requested to take steps to raise a loan of $13,000 from the merchants here to pay the soldiers who are at Patung, on the borders of Seuchen. Just think of that, after the troops of the Tuchun had looted this city twice over in a space of about six months! The money was forthcoming, as the Bank of China paid up $3,000, Young Bros. Trading Company $3,000, and the remainder would be divided among the other merchants.

NEAR IDEAL STATE As your correspondent informed you some time ago, there is a force of about 2,000 men in this place, but half of these have been taken away today on board the China Merchants' steamer Kiangtung bound for Shasi. So this city has now only about 1,000 soldiers left in it, and is thus reaching that ideal stage when there shall be no soldiers to trouble us. The following expression of opinion may interest readers. A leading Chinese merchant in the city here was recently asked if any progress was being made by the native merchants in their request for the internationalization of the port. His reply was, "All power is in the hands of the military, who regard the civil officials as dogs, and the people as birds to be used as targets by the soldiers when they wish to use their weapons. And this is supposed to be a republic! We are very much worse off than when under the Manchu regime."

As notified you by telegram, nearly all foreign steamers are being fired on when passing the district in which there is fighting between North and South. The Tungting and Tayue were fired on last week. The Kiangwo arrived here on Saturday night and also reported having been fired on; the Shasi arrived this morning and reported having been fired on by machine guns to the extent of about 40 rounds; the Standard Oil Company's Meinling was also fired on.

ELCANO SAILS The U.S.S. Elcano left here this morning for down river with the Commander of the Yangtze patrol on board, and may also make some investigations as to why ships are being molested. Your correspondent also understands that the Scarab has gone from Shasi to inquire into these matters.

Meantime trade is bad, and we hear that there is little or no cargo arriving for transport to the West, and the steamers may not be kept busy for a time.

FRENCH BOAT INQUIRES Ichang, August 13.—The French gunboat Doudart de Lagree left yesterday morning to investigate the firing on the Kiangtung, which is now reported dangerously aground on the rocks at Hsintan. The water is falling rapidly.

Wants Genl. Ma To Protect Turkestan

(Reuter's Pacific Service) Peking, August 12.—General Yang Tseng-hsin, Tuchun of Sinkiang, suggests that a commander-in-chief of frontier defense should be appointed, owing to the fact that Russian reactionary forces are active in and around Chinese Turkestan. He recommends General Ma Fu-hsiang for the post.

To this end an organized propaganda will be used throughout the world.

having failed to obtain China's consent to enter direct negotiations looking to the return of Shantung, has offered to negotiate for the withdrawal of military police from the Yenchu district.

To this proposal China is reported to have agreed in as much as the Yenchu occupation is not considered as being within the sphere of the Pacific Conference. In addition to this argument, the question has already been the subject of protracted diplomatic discussion.

According to Japanese information all the troops have been removed from the Yenchu district and there is now but a small force of military police. These are not concentrated but placed at points where they will give the maximum of protection, according to the Japanese. Considering that too many ingredients will spoil the cake at the Conference, it is expected that the Yenchu matter will be settled before the Conference is called.

FOOTING UP DAMAGE The Chinese Government is said to have wired to the taoyin of the Yenchu district, asking him to prepare an up-to-date report on the conditions of the Japanese police occupation. He is to report the present Japanese activities, estimate the losses that have fallen to China incident to the occupation over the whole period and report in detail such other matters as may be vital to the conference.

To force her will in the Shantung matter, according to reports, Japan will urge all the other nations to refuse to consider the matter at the Washington Conference. Japan is taking the stand that a broad principle of international co-operation is to be worked out rather than a settlement of details that are now causing misunderstandings. She holds that the Shantung matter should not be considered if this program is to be followed.

PLAN BIG PROPAGANDA According to reports sent to Peking from secret sources in Tokio, the Japanese papers are to begin a campaign against the inclusion of the Shantung even though America and possibly England are willing that it shall be included.

Papers in foreign countries that are either neutral or friendly to Japan will be asked to join in this campaign and thus create a strong public opinion in favor of Japan's position.

In the meantime China is sitting tight and there is little likelihood that she will consent to direct negotiations on Shantung. While the Chinese Government has given no indication that she will bring up the Shantung issue, it is expected that all of Japan's arguments can be met if the question is broached by some other power.

SEE END OF MILITARISM Peking, August 12.—A group of retired officials have signed a letter to the Government, urging the promulgation of self government in the provinces as the best means of putting an end to the military domination.

In the appointment of Wu Pei-fu to high office and the retirement of retired officials see the beginning of the end for the leading militarists but they say that unless self government can go ahead without restraint, the followers of the militarists will continue to make trouble.

JAPAN TIGHTENS QUARANTINE RULE AGAINST SHAI

Passengers Will Be Held In Detention Houses Day And A Night

Though Shanghai has been virtually free from cholera through the summer, announcement is being issued through the Nippon Yusen Kaisha that passengers from Shanghai are to be detained at least a day and a night in quarantine detention houses on arrival at Japanese ports. It is required further that those detained will be obliged to pay all quarantine expenses in advance on buying steamer tickets in Shanghai. The notice issued by the Nippon Yusen Kaisha is as follows:

"Passengers from Shanghai for disembarkation at steamer's first port of call will be detained in the quarantine detention house at the port of destination for at least one day and one night after arrival, until completion of the microscopic examination, and will have to pay all quarantine expenses, such as meals, etc., throughout this stay, which charges—as shown under—are to be paid in advance at Shanghai:

"Passengers for Nagasaki Yen 6.15 for European passengers (all classes).

"Passengers for Moji Yen 3 for 1st and 2nd class.

"Excess expenses—if any—will be collected at destination."

Pope Sends Nuncio To See Status Of Siberian Catholics

(Delta News Agency)
Peking, August 12.—The Pope interested to learn whether or not there exists religious liberty in Russia, and particularly in Siberia, sent a Special Apostolic Visitor to the Far Eastern Republic to investigate conditions there. The following is a resume of an article which appeared in the "Bulletin Catholique de Pekin" relating to the conditions of the Catholics in Siberia.

There are about 5,000 Catholics in Transbaikalia, about 85 percent of whom are Poles. They live in large communities at Olvanyanay, Shilok, Stretensk, Verkhne-Udinsk and Chita. Under the Tsarist Government their parishes had no independent administration, all of them being under the bishop who had his residence at Muhlief, Russia. They were entirely isolated, without any possibility of communicating with each other.

The liberty which the Catholics now enjoy in Siberia includes free worship, the right to perform religious ceremonies, and to organize religious societies on the understanding that the priests are not to engage in political activities (this in conformity with the constitutions of all other democratic countries, such as the case in France, for instance).

The Apostolic Visitor stopped at Chita for a week where he freely attended religious ceremonies and services at which more than 500 Roman Catholics were present. He was entertained at a banquet by the Catholics of the city at which occasion four priests were present, an event formerly unknown in Russia as under the old regime no such assemblies were permitted. The Apostolic Visitor states that he witnessed no national animosity between the Russians and Poles residing in Siberia.

The Apostolic Visitor was pleasantly impressed by the officials of the Far Eastern Republic, whom he thinks very sincere and who greatly facilitated the work of his Mission.

Irkutsk Now Anti-Red Says Japanese Wire

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Tokio, Aug. 10.—Irkutsk station is now occupied by the anti-Bolshevik under the command of Kasagrandy, reports a semi-official dispatch received here. The Soviet Government despatched a contingent for the recovery of the station, but the troops were defeated on the way by the anti-Bolshevik force in the vicinity of Stundianska.

In the districts extending from the line of Petrovskiy Zavod and Verkhne-Udinsk, southwards to the borders of Mongolia, the Cossacks and the farmers are acting in concert with the anti-Bolshevik against the Reds. The Soviet troops in this direction seem to be four trainfuls in strength.

2 PLANES GONE; SPARE PARTS IN HANDS OF ARMY

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, August 12.—Two of the Avro Aeroplanes, the property of the Air Administration of the Chinese Government and located at the Nanyuan Flying Field outside of Peking, have been mysteriously removed from their hangars. At the same time it is definitely known that a considerable quantity of airplane accessories have been also removed, either from the Nanyuan Field or the store-houses, and is in the hands of the military authorities, and it is believed that they have been taken over by the Mukden Warlord, Chang Tso-lin.

These facts, following so close upon the change of administration in the Department of Aviation, have led to the belief that there is a definite connection between the occurrences. It is pointed out that General Ting Ching, who was put in charge of the Air Administration after the downfall of the 'Anfu' last year, has consistently stood against the appropriation of the airplanes for non-commercial purposes. And that his successor, appointed through agreement between Generals Tsao Kun and Chang Tso-lin, is hampered by no such scruples; and while he is actually Tsao Kun's Chief-of-staff he has strong and friendly leanings toward General Chang Tso-lin.

Airplane Chain To Link Japan To Korea

(Reuter's Pacific Service)
Tokio, Aug. 8.—Of the new undertakings which the War Office has under contemplation for the next fiscal year, the most important is the establishment of aerial routes.

In order to improve the efficiency of the flying machines, the maximum period of service for each aeroplane will be decreased from the present six to four months.

Beautiful Hair

It is the ambition of everyone to have beautiful hair. Under right treatment it is easily acquired. Brushing and scalp massage are helpful, but do not remove the cause of poor, thin, unbecoming, lifeless and sheenless hair. GERMOL is the real cause of the trouble, and these can only be removed by special treatment.

After years of patient investigation the proprietors of 'GERMOL' who are Hair Specialists—discovered germicides which quickly kill the germs of Dandruff and Scalp Diseases which are the direct cause of thin, straggling, lifeless and sheenless hair. These germs are the cause of baldness, and premature greyness. A few applications of 'GERMOL' will make a wonderful difference to the appearance of the hair. Its feeding and stimulating properties promote a rich growth of new hair, restoring the natural waves or curls, and giving one that youthful appearance which is a characteristic of perfectly healthy hair.

For Prickly Heat of the scalp, and Irritation, 'GERMOL' gives immediate relief. Scalp irritation should be prevented at all cost, as it sets up inflammation in the root areas and causes the root sheath to lose its grip of the hair.

One bottle of 'GERMOL' is sufficient to protect the hair against germs for three months.

SHANGHAI MEETS CAVALRY IN FOURTH GAME OF SERIES THIS AFTERNOON AT 4:30 p.m.

Sunday's Rain And Heavy Rolling Of Diamond Makes Conditions More Favorable For Locals To Put Up Their Usual Game

On a baseball diamond all nicely softened out by Sunday's rain and rolled to a proper smoothness for the first time since the dry season set in, Shanghai will have their fourth try this afternoon at the strong Ninth Cavalry, which in the first three games of the series of six has kept a perfect slate by three straight wins.

The rolling out of the chuck holes near third base and short. It is hoped, will help the balls to bound as per calculation, or slower, or something, and so reduce the numerous fumbles that have so far marred Shanghai's chances to win.

Today's lineup will be about the same that finished Saturday's game for the local team. Charley Glanque arrived from Tientsin just in time to lay that hoodoo at third base. He threw one wide on Saturday, but he compensated by other clean fielding, and some needed hitting. He rapped the ball safely twice, once for a home, putting Shanghai momentarily in the lead in the eighth inning.

Glanque with a little workout will handle that hot corner for the rest of this series, for it is not probable that Maloney can get his ankle limbered up, except for a little pinch hitting or may be to twirl the final game. The postponement of Sunday's game forces a rearrangement of the schedule of play. The last three games of the series will be played this evening, tomorrow and Thursday, commencing each day at 4:30 o'clock.

Merrill and Terry will probably work in the box today and tomorrow for Shanghai, with possibly Dennison or Maloney in shape for service Thursday.

Beat Up Whole Town Hailed As Champion

Washington, July 9.—Todd Christian Woodworth, Arizona boxing king and sportsman, left Washington today prepared to give Broadway the sensation of a lifetime. He had with him a man he believes will be the next heavyweight champion of the United States—Henry Darnelle, a member of the Washington police force who gained local fame on the fourth of July by cleaning out almost the entire population of the near-by town of Capital Heights, Md., with his bare fists. Darnelle defeated every man who came in front of him in a free-for-all battle.

With C. E. Van Riper, trainer of prize fighters, Woodworth arrived in Washington this morning for the purpose of finding if Darnelle really has championship ability. After Van Riper confronted Darnelle and followed all the formulae known to his craft, tested this muscle and that, he declared Darnelle to be the finest specimen of physical manhood he ever had seen. Only twenty-one years of age, Darnelle tips the scales at 198 pounds, and has a chest expansion of eight inches.

Upon this arrival in New York tomorrow Darnelle will be taken at once to the training quarters of Dr. Roller, where he will be put through a serious test, the purpose of this being to find out if he has any change in a possible bout with Dempsey.

As an example of Darnelle's prowess in the squared circle, he is the undefeated heavy-weight champion of the United States Navy's destroyer fleet. The summit of his fighting career in the Navy was at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, at the 1919 manoeuvres, when he was acclaimed the invincible champion by reason of the fact that all other contenders for the title refused to fight him. He had cleaned up the heavyweights on every ship with which he saw duty during a four year enlistment.

Once out of the navy, Darnelle joined the Washington police force and has been doing duty in a tough section of the nation's capital.

Casualties in the free-for-all at the Capitol Heights carnival are said to have numbered at least 250. Darnelle, when asked for an explanation of the cleaning-up episode, said he was "just foolin'." Capitol Heights citizens were indignant, however, and a delegation of more than a score of the injured called personally on Commissioner Ogster of the District of Columbia to exhibit their wounds and make complaint. Darnelle has been ordered to appear before a Police Board for trial next Wednesday.

RIFLE ASS'N. HAS BIG PROGRAM FOR COMING 2 MONTHS

Monthly Circular Outlines Several Competitions In Prospect

Members of the Shanghai Rifle Association have two busy months of competitions outlined for them in the association's monthly circular just issued.

The August Monthly Competition will be held on Monday next and on Monday, August 29, from 4 to 6:30 p.m. each day. Next Monday the 600 yard range will be used, and on the following week 200-yards will be the range. Conditions provide ten shots with no sighter, at each distance.

The Nestles Cup, 13th competition, will be shot next Monday morning from 6:30 o'clock on. Entries close Saturday at noon.

Competition for the Benevolent Shield, presented by Mr. Ito will be held Monday, August 29, from 7 a.m. Entries close on Wednesday, August 24 at 5 p.m. Conditions call for ranges from 100 to 500 yards. The highest score in each competition will receive 20 points, the next highest 18, and so on down to 2 points. The first prize will be the Ito shield, second and third prizes are to be presented by the association.

The Shanghai British 303 Rifle Championship annual competition will be held on Saturday, Sunday and Monday, Sept. 10th, 11th and 12th, with entries closing September 5 at 5 p.m. Distances to targets will range from 200 to 1,000 yards. A gold cross will go to the winner, a silver cross to the second man and a bronze cross to the third, with special prizes to other successful entrants.

Rawlings And Stengel Traded To Giants

Boston, Mass., July 1.—Announcement was made here of a big baseball deal between the Giants and the Philadelphia National League Club. The deal brings to the McGraw clan "Casey" Stengel, the outfielder and former member of the Pittsburgh and Brooklyn clubs, and infielder Rawlings, once with the Boston Braves.

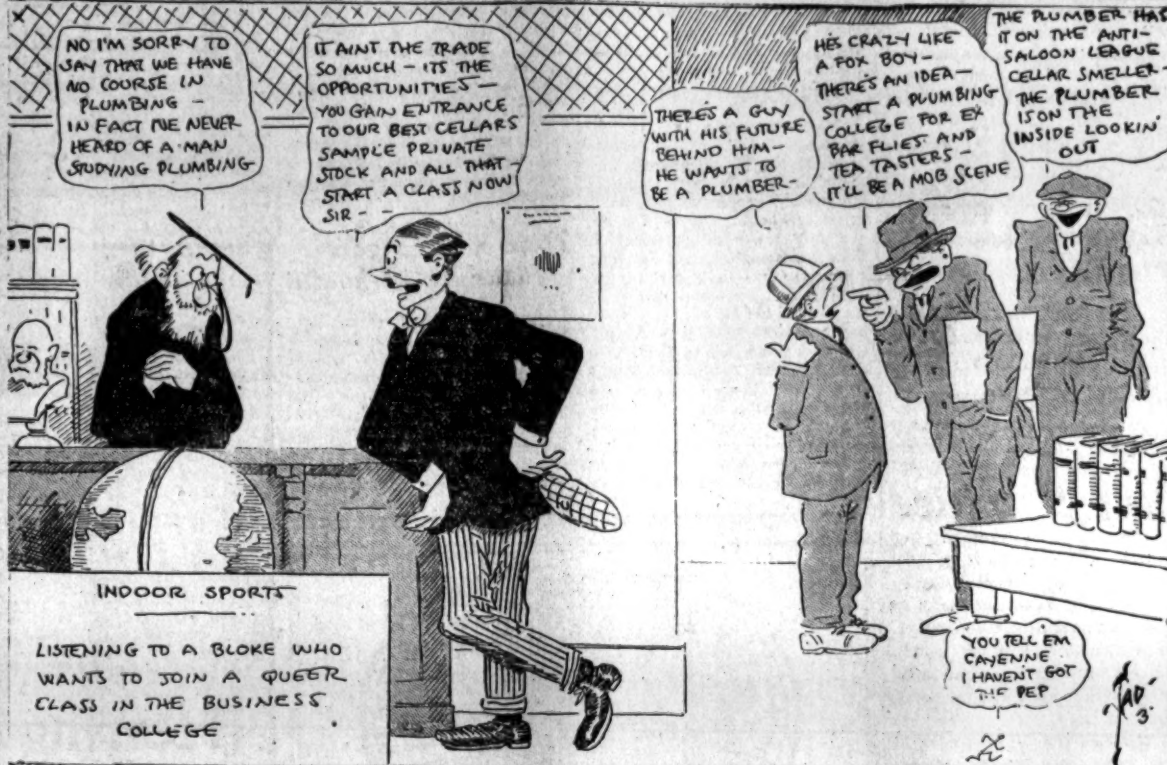

The Giant players who go in exchange are Goldie Rapp, infielder; Lee King, outfielder, and Lance Richbourg, an infielder now with the Dallas (Texas League) club on option.

It is figured that Stengel will add strength to the Giant outer garden, and that Rawlings will prove a valuable man for the Giants inner defense, which has long been in need of bolstering. It is thought probable that McGraw will place Rawlings at second and shift Frank Frisch to third in an effort to strengthen his team.

The departure of Rapp and King from the Giants is cause for regret. Rapp came up to the big leagues with a world of reputation. He looked good in the training camp last Spring, but failed after the season opened. Rapp cost the New York club $15,000.

Lee King was retained on the McGraw payroll solely because of his ability to hit left-handers. Lee failed frequently in his chosen calling with the Giants, although no man can bang a ball farther

N. E. MOLLER WINS CLAY BIRD SHOOT WITH HIGH SCORE

Totals Perfect Score In High Wind And Rain At Sunday's Weekly Shoot

Mr. N. E. Moller Sunday won the "D. D." cup competition of the Shanghai Clay Pigeon Club, with 36 breaks out of a possible 40, which with his handicap of four gave him a score of 40. Beatty was a close second with 34 breaks and a handicap of five for a score of 39, and Himrod made a close third with a total score of 38 points.

The shoot was held in a typhoon under torrents of rain. The roof of the pavilion had been blown away, making the competition one of general discomfort. Thirteen men however turned up for the competition.

The scores follow:

Moller	36 plus 4	= 40
Beatty	34	= 39
Himrod	32	= 38

Storm At Sea Sent Jock Hutchison To Golf Links

72-Year Old Father, A Caddie Of St. Andrews, Tells Of Champion's Beginning At Great Game

St. Andrews, Scotland, July 2.—Jock Hutchison has sailed away for America with the British open golf championship cup, and if there is one person in the British Isles who is glad that he had won it and has the trophy in his keeping it is his father, Willie Hutchison, seventy-two years old and still a caddie at St. Andrews.

Willie, like many another Scot, is not expansive but when The World correspondent saw him today he was bubbling over with joy at his son's victory. Jock has asked his father to visit him in America soon, and the old retired fisherman expects to do so in what he calls the slack season.

"I knew very well that Jock would win the championship," he said. "He had the ability and the stamina to do it, and I'm a very proud man today. I'm glad that he won it at St. Andrews, here where he was born and in sight of all his friends."

"I was there to see him nolt the putt that made him champion and I was so excited when he did it that I gave three cheers for him. I'm the proudest old man in this country, but wouldn't his mother have been proud, too, had she been alive to see Jock win? He is the very image of her, too. Well, the cup is on its way to America and I'm glad."

Like all good caddies, old Willie Hutchison is a silent one except when spoken to. Several times during the most critical rounds of the championship, and while he was carrying for some one else, the old man found himself on a green adjacent to where his son was putting, but Willie, for all his inward excitement, was intent only on the play before him.

It was only on the last day of the tournament when the tie for the title was being played off between Hutchison and Roger Wethered the British amateur that he had an opportunity of seeing much of Jock's brilliant playing, but he never left himself in doubt as to who would be the eventual winner.

Speaking of Jock's early life to day, he told of one particular day when such a high sea was running that he alone among the St. Andrews fishermen decided to put out along with Jock, because times were so hard. Father and son eventually returned safely to shore, but only after the most harrowing experiences. Wee Jock decided then and there that he would never go to sea again.

Baby's Own Tablets are not for babies only. They are a remedy for teething troubles, indigestion, feverishness, constipation, colic, or diarrhoea in children of all ages, and they also allay colds and expel worms.

Mrs. Ford, of 391 Colborne Street, London, Ontario, Canada, writes, "Until I began using Baby's Own Tablets my baby was always constipated and was restless and sleepless. I tried several medicines, but they did not help her, but since using the Tablets her bowels have been quite regular and she sleeps well. Ruth Gets His 43rd Home Run

Babe Ruth rapped out his 43rd homer of the 1921 season Saturday afternoon at Philadelphia, thus putting his home run hitting pace for this year just two runs and seven days ahead of his record for the same date in 1920.

Up until August 13, 1921, Ruth had clouted out but 42 circuit hits. His 43rd was made on August 20. He promised yet to beat his record busting total of 54 homers made in 1920. He has seven weeks in which to get the homers needed to beat that mark.

MILLIONS RUBLES SPENT LAVISHLY BY FRENCH CHILDREN

at The Money Is Printed By Wrangel, Whose Revolt
Was Crushed

LUMPED INTO A VILLAGE

General Sent Load To Buy A
Chateau; Owners Rejected
Medium Of Pay

Paris, June 18.—Children in France, an eleventh century village in the Haute-Loire, are having the age of their young lives spending millions and millions of real money in their games, but it is Gen.
Wrangel's money, and not one else wants it.

Back of this strange sight of children with their pockets stuffed with bank notes lies a tale of Gen. Wrangel's greatest disappointment, namely, that the French Government would not give him a refuge after having recognised his regime.

After fleeing to the Dardanelles, Gen. Wrangel came here and decided to buy the Chateau Brioude.
He called at the office of an agent who was authorised to sell the place and surprised him by offering 50 percent more than was originally asked for it.

The chateau was owned and occupied by two spinsters, who refused to move out of it until they had received the cash. No sooner than done. Two motor trucks rove up the ancient roadway and then Gen. Wrangel's emissary opened off the covers of the boxes of the trucks, they were found to be filled with rubles printed on the most brilliant paper and conceived in the most artistic manner and which had been made during the Wrangel regime, which ended so catastrophically.

"If you are patriotic, you will accept these in payment for your chateau," Gen. Wrangel's agent said. "President Millerand has recognised us, and, therefore, our money has face value here."

But the owners of the chateau refused to touch anything but francs and Gen. Wrangel and his followers decided to seek another asylum.

The drivers of the trucks were not paid for carrying the boxes of money to the chateau and refused to haul them away. After a few days they were found by school children.

It is estimated that about 50,000, 000 Wrangel rubles are now in the possession of about twenty newborn youngsters.

Red Cross Doctor From Famine Area Opens Office Here

Dr. M. de Colbert Has Long
Record Of War Service
In Russia

Dr. M. de Colbert, physician and surgeon, who for the past four months has been head physician of the American Red Cross famine relief work in Shanxi and Shantung, arrived in Shanghai Friday after the conclusion of the Red Cross work in the north.
He is opening an office in the Bera building where he will practice.

Dr. de Colbert was in charge of three Red Cross hospitals in the famine road-building zone, along the road from Ping-Ting-Chow to Liaochow, covering a distance of more than 260 li. These hospitals had more than 350 beds occupied nearly all of the time with influenza, and recurrent fever, cases and four or five cases of typhus, of which the doctor himself was one.

The American Red Cross road-building work involved the construction of about 200 li of road, leaving some 80 li of the original program untouched on the withdrawal of the workers.

Dr. de Colbert is a native of Wisconsin and took his university training in Heidelberg and Paris after which he practised in Tennessee and Wisconsin. For the past nine years he has been with the American Red Cross. He has been service with that organization in Armenia, Siberia, Africa and South America. During the war Dr. de Colbert held the rank of Major in the U. S.
Army medical corps, and saw service near Ypres near the home of his ancestors.

Dr. de Colbert tells a typical story of hardship in Russia, while in Armenia he was chief surgeon of the American Red Cross hospital near Cerna, when Russian Bolsheviks attacked the town and shelled the hospital in spite of its flying the American and the Red Cross flags. Thirteen patients, one doctor and three nurses were killed in the attack.

The hospital personnel then was captured, and taken to Tiflis, Baku, and to Moscow, where they were held captive three weeks. Dr. de Colbert had with him his wife, and four children, two boys, and two girls, all under age. The doctor and his wife were held in prison, but the children were released and turned into the streets, in the middle of winter, with no funds, no suitable clothing and no friends.

Finally, when the doctor and his wife were released and given free passage to Vladivostok in a box car with 15 other refugees, he sought his children only to find that one had died of exposure and starvation. The others were found and the long journey across Siberia to Vladivostok was made with many hardships. It was from Vladivostok that Dr. de Colbert joined the Red Cross famine work in China.

According to reports in high society circles a Russian chemist who has managed to evade the Bolsheviks and has arrived in Paris actually has succeeded in producing small quantities of gold
from lead and iron scraps.

German Horse Races Called Colossal Fraud

Berlin, May 21.—Horse races in Germany generally were honest affairs before the war, but scandals are the rule now-days. Typical of the rest were the recent Carlshof races, under the auspices of the Strausberg Racing Society, which so arranged matters as to keep not only all the purses but also the amounts of the totalisation and registration fees.

Four horses ran in the so-called Fredericksdorf race. When the jockeys had galloped over more than three-quarters of the distance they began trotting, so that the first horse arrived at the starting point seven and a half minutes after the agreed maximum time.

According to the rules no purse was paid and the money placed on the horses and the registration fees went to the treasury of the Strausberg Racing Society.

RUSSIAN CHEMIST TRANSMUTES IRON INTO GOLD

Laboratory Demonstration Brings Formation Of Co.

Paris, June 18.—With the world's gold reserve flowing toward the United States the time worn hope of the alchemists to find some method of creating precious metals from baser metals is being revived here with startling success—for the would-be al-chemist. Instead of the al-chemists of the future leading a Midas-like existence they will have the backing of a board of directors, a legal corporation and hundreds of thousands of francs with which to continue their experiments until acceptable investors lose faith.

According to reports in high
society circles a Russian chemist
who has managed to evade the Bolsheviks and has arrived in Paris actually has succeeded in producing small quantities of gold
from lead and iron scraps.

Private laboratory conferences have convinced the members of some of France's titled families who see possibilities of monarchistic restoration if funds can be obtained by merely boiling miles of barbed wire from the battlefields. They have started a company with a capital of 100,000 francs and intend to increase the capital to 1,000,000 francs as soon as the laboratory wizard proves his ability on a large scale.

Other wealthy Frenchmen also are interested in money making schemes, even Henri de Rothschild deciding he has not yet his share of the world's wealth. He will probably come nearer his aim than the alchemists, as he is reported to have decided to erect a canning factory on one of his farms where all the fowl and game shot by himself and his friends in his forest preserves will be tinned in a Chicago.

Suspension Bridge Spans Gorge Of Grand Canyon

'Most Inaccessible Bridge In The World,' Says The Construction Engineer—A Triumph
Of Engineering Skill

BY ARNOLD KRUCKMAN

Grand Canyon, Ariz., June 18.— Mrs. D. L. Raeburn, wife of the Superintendent of Grand Canyon National Park, took a leisurely walk across the steel spider web which now bridges the gorge of the mighty Colorado River a mile and a half below the rim of the gigantic Grand Canyon, and Superintendent Raeburn handed the contractor's agent a voucher for $25,000. These matter-of-fact incidents constituted all the ceremonies which marked the opening by Uncle Sam of the bridge which is considered one of the most remarkable engineering feats of its kind ever accomplished. Construction Engineer O. W. Childs, who the most inaccessible bridge in the world.

It was built by Uncle Sam's National Park Service, of which Stephen Mather is the head, and it belongs to the people of the United States. It links up the Bright Angel Trail of the south rim with the Bright Angel Canyon Creek trail of the north rim, which penetrates a country full of natural wonders and wild life such as hitherto has not been accessible to the public anywhere in the great parks of the United States.
The trails, as well as the slender suspension bridge, can be traversed only by mule or on foot.

The bridge is 500 feet long and can carry a weight of approximately 100,000 pounds. It is suspended from two main steel cables, which weigh 1,000 pounds each and are seven-eighths of an inch in diameter.

To get these cables into the bottom of the abyss was one of the new problems Superintendent Raeburn was obliged to solve in the course of construction. The cables were loaded on the shoulders of fifteen stout-hearted rangers, and mule was placed on either end with a coil weighing 100 pounds. It took this cavalcade almost eighteen hours to traverse the fifteen miles of dizzy, narrow trails that constitute the most perilous paths in the world. One ranger collapsed from nervous strain two-thirds of the way down.

Everything that went into the construction of the bridge was transported into the gorge on the backs of pack mules. The pack trains carried over forty tons of supplies and materials, including TNT, to the bottom of the titanic chasm.

The construction was begun in December. At that time a camp for the working crew was opened on a narrow patch of sand alongside of the river a mile and a half below the rim of the earth, and many of the workmen remained there continuously until the bridge was finished.

ASKS AMERICA TO GIVE RESPITE TO AUSTRIA

Ambassadors' Council Proposes Suspension Of Claims For Twenty Years

TOTAL ABOUT $20,000,000

With Like Action By Allies, Austria Is Expected To Stabilise Finances

BY EDWIN L. JAMES

Paris, July 1.—The Council of Ambassadors addressed today to the Government of the United States a note asking if America would agree to postpone for twenty years her claims against the Austrian Government. These claims, amounting to some $20,000,000, relate to food relief advances.

The project of withholding for twenty years all claims against the Austrian Government is the basis of the League of Nations plans for the financial rehabilitation of Austria. England and France have agreed to postpone their reparation claims for twenty years, and it is understood that Italy is expected to do likewise. England has also agreed to the postponement of her claims for food relief advances, which amount to about half the American claims.

This is not the first time the proposition has been called to the attention of Washington. The League has already communicated to the American Government the basis of the plan, expecting to get an answer as to the American attitude; but it is understood that no reply has been received. However, today's note is not written on the League of Nations' stationery, but in that of the Council of Ambassadors, on which America has a member.

League experts say that without American co-operation their plan will not work, for if the new Austrian State Bank had to start its existence in the face of a $20,000,000 American claim it would not run. It will be recalled that under the arrangement made after the armistice, food relief claims have precedence over general reparation claims, and it is understood that this priority would still exist under any broad postponement of the claims program.

M. Avenol, the French member of the League of Nations Austrian Finance Commission, said that the plan had two main features. One was the postponement by Austria's creditors of all claims for twenty years, and the other was the adoption of fiscal reforms by the Vienna Government. He said that France, England, Japan and Czechoslovakia had agreed to postpone their claims, and that he was convinced that Italy would do so.

"Also," he said, "I have the conviction that the United States, although it did not take part in our work, will not press for the advances it made for food relief."

He added that the Vienna Government had agreed to the reforms the commission had demanded, and that it was assured that the National Assembly would vote the necessary laws. M. Avenol said that if all Austria's creditors would agree to suspend their claims the proposed bank would be assured of resources to carry it for the first six months, after which it was hoped that Austria could make her own way, inasmuch as she would be free of pressing obligations.

M. Avenol also pointed out that the success of the League in aiding Austria would tend to put down agitation for union with Germany and would do much to stabilise economic conditions in Central Europe.

French Writers Are Artisans Of Despair

BY MR. EUGENE BRIEUX

Paris, June 30.—Until lately most of the friends of France confined themselves to a feeble protest or sadly kept silence when they heard her spoken of severely. If they refused to share the opinion of the enemies of France, the latter brought them the printed opinion of the French upon themselves, and made them read what the French said of one another.

And when the friends of France expressed their persistent esteem for the French woman they were reduced to silence, although not perhaps convinced, by being made to read two or three French novels or to hear two or three French plays. France was doubtful of her strength, her dignity and her future. Then the astonished world discovered, little by little, that the assertions of the enemies of France were lies, and the judgments passed by the French themselves were false; that France was calumniated by her politicians and her own writers.

HER WOMEN HEALTHY

The war broke out. Events showed that what had been taken for torpor, for the agony of a people, was only sleep—and that sleep was only apparent. The astonished world perceived that France was very living, that her women were healthy and brave, and that her sons were not degenerates.

France suffered, however, profoundly. The loss of Alsace-Lorraine, after the disasters of 1870, was a wound which would not close up. With time she could have forgotten all the insults heaped upon her, but not that one. Time has no effect on injuries of that description.

ARTISANS OF DESPAIR

And, since France had been vanquished, she had begun to doubt of her own worth, had begun to decry herself simply to be logical. Then it was that there began that unfortunate literature which has done the French more harm in the eyes of the world than the defeat of 1870 itself.

The writers whom that generation produced were the artisans of despair. Those who spoke of love calumniated the French woman. Oh! very innocently and without heeding the harm they were doing. Generally these writers of despair were honest fathers of families, husbands of honest women. Only this is what happened: French literature has always delighted in the study of sentiment. French authors wished to continue to cultivate that field in which their fathers had succeeded. They desired, however, to produce something new, and as everything seemed to them to have been said about legitimate love and honest women, they spoke of the other kind of love and the other kind of women.

People made the mistake of believing that the women who were the contemporaries and the contemporaries of the French authors were exactly like those whose physical and sentimental anomalies they described.

HE WAS ENLIGHTENED

Long ago I protested against this error in the play called "La Franciscaine." In that play I put upon the stage an American from the Far West, who only knew French women from French novels, French theatres and from those to whom he had been introduced by a young man whom he met on the boulevard in front of the Grand Hotel.

Arrived in France he met a French woman, an honest woman, and was waiting in respect for her. The American was enlightened. Those foreigners, however, who do not come to France or who never have the opportunity of meeting true French women retain the opinion they have formed from their reading. But that opinion is now changing.

But to return to the French woman as I have shown her. Has she virtues only? No, since she is a woman; I mean, since she belongs to humanity. It happens to her to be a coquette, and to be carried further than she meant. That may happen to honest women. But when they reach the edge of the precipice, what a start—what a revolt!

DIFFERENT KIND OF PLAY

I wonder why, some day, certain plays should not be a compromise between the theater and the lecture. It is not a new form, since it was employed by Aristophanes. The book has every freedom to treat other subjects than love; why should the theater be condemned to deal with only one? Is every theater a temple raised in honor of an idol, of one alone which can never be overthrown? And can one only worship there the trinity of husband, wife and lover?

Our life is wholly occupied by two unconscious struggles—one carried on in the interest of the perpetuation of the species, and its scenic expression constitutes the drama of love; the other, the object of which is the conservation of the individual—and its scenic expression constitutes the social drama.

Why should we be interested in one only of those two combats? The dramatist has a right to deal with other subjects than love; that right, hitherto exercised under the form of tragedy, is now exercised under the form of the social drama.

The social volcano is boiling, and the premonitory noises were never more formidable. Are dramatists who possess the most powerful of speaking trumpets to content themselves with looking into alcoves? Truly, that is not enough for the activity of all, and certain of us have placed our ideal elsewhere.

AFRAID OF LION? NOT THIS WOMAN

Finding 'Yellow Dog' Feasting On Her Hog, She Furiously Beats Him With Umbrella

Turin, Italy, June 1.—An Italian film concern sent a cage containing six lions from Turin to Pallone. Scared by a tractor plough, the horses ran away and the truck with the cage was hurled against a tree and overturned. The cage rolled down a slope beside the road and the lions escaped.

Five of the six beasts were soon recaptured by tamers, but of the sixth lion no trace was found until the searching party was attracted to a farm house by a loud and indignant feminine voice. The tamers went back of the house and—laughed.

A peasant woman was belaboring the sixth lion with an umbrella, cursing the "yellow dog" which had killed a hog. The woman was paid 350 lire damages and the "hands" of the moving picture concern fed on roasted pork for three days.

In the Matter of Registration of Transfer or Loss of Treasury Bills

NOTICE is hereby given to the public that the Treasury Bills or Promissory Notes issued from time to time by this Ministry in the Chinese or foreign language to the various institutions, banks or foreign firms are of numerous kinds, and it frequently happens that complications arise owing to loss or transfer of such documents by the original holders. Such a loss or transfer is detrimental to the circulation of Treasury Bills as well as being injurious to Government credit.

In the Second Year of the Republic (1913), Regulations governing the Registration of Transfer or Loss of Official Salary Treasury Bills were enforced and found to be of great convenience to the holders. Similar Regulations are to be enforced in regard to all other kinds of Treasury Bills or Promissory Notes, as follows:

(1) In the case of making a transfer of Treasury Bills or Promissory Notes, other than bearer documents, wherein the name of the Payee is specified, the original Payee himself must apply to this Ministry for sanction of the transfer, any such transfer shall become valid only after it has been duly sanctioned by this Ministry. This Ministry will not recognize as valid any transfer made in any other way. In the case of loss of Treasury Bills or Promissory Notes, the original Payee shall report the case to this Ministry and this Ministry will take such action as required by the circumstances.

(2) Unmatured bearer Treasury Bills or Promissory Notes shall not be used to meet payments due to the Government. No application for replacement of lost bearer Treasury Bills or Promissory Notes will be considered. The above Regulations are enforced for the purpose of protecting the interests of the original holders and facilitating the work of this Ministry in dealing with such matters.

WEATHER

The typhoon, which has just raised hard N-E squalls at Chinkiang, will continue to recurve towards the Yangtze, and probably cross it between that town and Anking. The winds and weather will moderate along the coast. The violent typhoon of the Bonin threatens the South of Japan, but may still incline towards N-W, in the direction of the Loochoos.

The Chinese Political Stage
BY JOSEF W. HALL

THE last week has seen the establishment of General Wu Pei-fu's power in the Wuhan region, and recognition of this fact by Peking, which, whatever may be said of it, contrives in its mandates to keep fairly up with the changes in political balance of power among the military chieftains. Wuhan, the heart of China, has been recognised by all political writers upon China as being the strategic district of the country. Here began the republican revolution. With this area under his control, and a South which he can always utilise as a club against the Northern militarists, Wu Pei-fu should not lack opportunity to put into speedy execution his well-worked out theories for the reunification and democratisation of his people. The nation and the world are watching him with sympathetic interest.

Up north, the star of Chang Tso-lin, in the opinion of many, has begun to wane. Even the Peking government, largely his creation, has during the past week seen fit to flout, for the first time, his expressed desires. The organs of his Japanese friends are suggesting that since his wise injunctions are going unheeded south of the Great Wall, he should for the time being forego its concern for the welfare of the Eighteen Provinces and confine his attention to consolidating his power in Manchuria.

If he follows this line there will be no clash with Wu Pei-fu in the immediate future. Wu would gladly sacrifice Manchuria to the success of his plans for the Eighteen Provinces. Such a development probably would conduce to the further intrenchment of Japan in Manchuria, which to all intents and purposes would become a separate kingdom under Japanese hegemony. Even at the risk of such consequences, Wu Pei-fu is following the policy of wisdom, in the opinion of many of his sympathisers.

Tao Kan, Wu's former superior officer, an individual who habitually avoids a decision, now stands between the Fengtien lord and the new progressive power on the Yangtze. Tao dreads a clash of any kind, and will work for peace between the two. Still, his fence-riding proclivities may easily prove the match to set off the fireworks. The relations of Tao and his former subordinate will be most interesting. Tao has been in the habit of relying absolutely upon Wu, throwing upon him the burden of decision, and openly preparing to renounce him in event his decision proved unfortunate.

Wu, more conscious than any other individual of Tao's weaknesses, yet remains loyal to him with the loyalty of a Chinese pupil to his master. It is generally believed that the elimination of Li Shun from the lower Yangtze was the work of Chang Tso-lin, and that Tao Kan would ere now have suffered a like fate had it not been for his wide-awake lieutenant, Wu. Without Wu, can Tao last? Would his fall involve Chang and Wu in a clash? This act is still under preparation in the workrooms of the gods of the national destiny, and no advance notices are being given out.

THE Pacific Conference still holds out as the paramount international attraction. Several of the leading Chinese dailies of Tientsin and Peking have offered rewards of $200 down for the best articles on the policy of China in regard to the conference. The scrap in the capital as to who shall represent the great government of the Chinese Republic in Washington goes merrily on, with Dr. W. W. Yen, the Foreign Office head for the time being winning.

THE Japanese have at last got their long-sought hold on the one railway previously free of foreign capital and influence—the Peking-Suiyuan. The hold is of a very substantial nature. It seriously violates the Consortium agreement. More anon.

PEKING, which has from time immemorial followed the policy of opposing any increase in prestige of the Moslems, is disappointed that the Mohammedan Kansu, General Ma, should have succeeded so well in taking over the Tutungship of Suiyuan. The plan is to give him an Irish promotion to Sinkiang (Chinese Turkistan). He has offered to go if Peking will produce the travel expenses—a modest item of five million dollars. Peking is reconsidering the matter.

A STATUE in bronze to the memory of Dr. Jieme Tien-yu, China's great railway-builder and man of vision, has been ordered in Japan. We suppose it will be paid for from the money which the Japanese have lately put into the Peking-Suiyuan, Dr. Jieme's railway. Dr. Jieme's great aim was to keep this one railway, reaching out into the heart of Asia—China's great northwest, the frontier of the world—immune from foreign influence. Judas had he been of the Chinese official psychology, might have borrowed money from Pontius Pilate for a state to Christ—providing there was a liberal commission for himself.

How He Could Try

A stout passenger alighted from a train at a small station in Scotland. He was a stranger to the village.

After walking the whole length of the poorly lighted platform he failed to discover the way out. Not even a porter could be found and the man was almost in despair when he noticed a ragged urchin peering through the railings, evidently vastly interested in the stranger's appearance.

"I can't get out of this confounded station," said the traveller. "Can you show me the proper way out?"

The lad surveyed his questioner, moved away a yard or two and asked, with a grin, "Have you tried sideways?"

It's A Fact

That a horseshoe is something that a father of ten or eleven children wishes he could fit them up with instead of leather shoes.

That a horseshoe is also considered lucky—as long as it is not presented by the hind legs of a horse.

That when it is presented in this manner it is also considered lucky, but not for you. No; it's a harvest for your family physician. You'll use over a gallon of liniment before you get the imprint of that horseshoe removed from your body.

That a horse must have shoes. You'd feel darn embarrassed taking your best girl out driving with a barefooted horse. Suppose it started to rain and your horse got wet feet and caught a terrible cold? Man, you'd never get this off your conscience as long as you lived.

That this same man has been looking for another horseshoe ever since. He thinks if he can find another one somebody will come along and steal his mother-in-law.

Mont St. Michael
£80,000,000 Project

Reuter cabled out yesterday that a group of American engineers, backed by American financiers, has submitted plans to harness the tides of the Bay of St. Michael at an estimated cost of eighty millions sterling. In view of this development the following facts should prove interesting to readers:

Mont St. Michael, on the coast of Normandy, which King George and Queen Mary visited recently is one of the few places in the world that Nature has seen fit to duplicate.

For the stately outline of this world-famous rocky islet is reproduced almost exactly by our St. Michael's Mount in Cornwall—both being formed of the same material on practically the same pattern, both dedicated to the same ecclesiastical patron of mariners, and both, at one time, united under the same religious authority, though separated by a hundred miles of sea.

Both, too, have been connected artificially with the mainland by a stone causeway—a somewhat unfortunate experiment as regards the French islet. For the altered tidal currents have been slowly sapping its foundations, so that other extensive works have had to be undertaken in order to counteract their influence.

Mont St. Michael consists of a mass of granite, 3,000 feet in compass and 165 feet in height, set in a maze of quicksands at a distance of a mile from the shore.

These sands are uncovered for long distances at low water, and have proved in many instances a veritable death-trap to tourists and others venturing upon them without a guide.

The tide, more especially when the wind is in a certain quarter, flows in with such well-nigh inconceivable rapidity that there are instances even of people on horseback being overtaken and engulfed by it.

In the days before modern artillery existed the Mont was regarded as impregnable, and the fortress-abbey that crowns it has been repeatedly—though for the most part vainly—besieged by the English, as well as by the French themselves during the religious wars of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries.

It is interesting to note, too, that at the time of the Conquest it supplied William of Normandy with six ships, receiving in return rich spoil from the plundered monasteries and abbeys of England.

There is only one short street on the islet, lined with lodging-houses for the use of tourists and pilgrims, and its chief interest nowadays consists in its historical and religious associations.

THEIR FAVORITE SONG

A Scotch comedian on his return from a successful tour in the U.S.A. was holding forth with a good deal of feeling on the workings of the Eighteenth Amendment in the States, "where," he said, "you could not get the 'Wee-wee' of 'Wee drappies.'" He thirstily affirmed that he had met many Yankees who had voted to bring about the present state of affairs and that they now bitterly regretted it.

Sammy Shields, a great favorite on the London Halls chipped in and said:

"I suppose that their favorite song now is: 'I'm sorry I made you dry.'"

PRECAUTIONS

A correspondent to one of the London weeklies asks how blushing can be prevented.

Staying away from revues, wearing smoked glasses at the seaside, ear-pads when near a golf course and going blindfold to local dances might help.

ICI ON PARLE ANGLAIS

A Scottish laborer met an English laborer at an agricultural show. Neither could understand the other, and at last the Scotsman, rather nettled, said: "Mon, yer cows moo a' richt and yer cocks craw quite plain, but I'm hanged if I can mak' ye oot."

The man who looks for Trouble will find that Trouble is not a coward. He won't hide when he finds he is being searched for.

"PUT ME AMONG THE MEN"

(Lady Astor is the only woman who is so far a Member of Parliament, but she confesses that her unique position does not worry her much.)

A comic artist used to sing—"Put me among the girls!" (A word that by some happy chance Rhymes perfectly with "pearls")

It rather shocked me I confess—

The Bobbed-Hair Girl

Says an indignant correspondent of the New York Tribune:

It seems rather a pity that a president of an insurance company can find no better arguments against bobbed hair than those he is reported to have voiced. The arguments are as meager and unfounded as could be given by a man far less acquainted with the employment of girls than he. As if a girl with long hair is not as desirous of finding a good husband some day as is her bobbed-haired sister.

So far as efficiency is concerned it is ridiculous to think that a girl cannot work as well after her hair is cut as before. She does not undergo a metamorphosis, not does her mind perform a somersault because her locks are cut off. If she was a sensible, earnest girl in long hair she remains the same when her hair is bobbed. A short-haired girl does not have to spend five or ten minutes in the dressing room to coil up long hair, for her "coiffure" is made for the whole day when her hair is cut.

to say nothing of the wonderful comfort of a hairpin-less, netless, free-to-the-air head of hair.

Finally, it is unspeakably narrow-minded to judge any one by a hairdress rather than judge a person for herself only; for a refined, earnest girl will always be pleasing and a good worker whether her hair reaches her waist or her neck.

I was much younger then—
But now, today, the song I sing
Is—Put me among the men!

Yes, put me among the men,
girls,
In the good old H. of C.I.
I'm one among six hundred odd—
What happiness to me!
I think they don't much like me there—
They hint it now and then;
But for their feelings I don't care—
Put me among the men.
(All Sing.)

Yes, put me among the men,
girls,
In the good old Commons House!
One woman to six hundred men—
A fact that makes them grouse.
I know they don't much like me there—
They hint it now and then;
But let them from henceforth beware—
Put me among the men!
—With apologies to "John Bull."

WHY HE ENJOYED IT

"Sir," said the young man with enthusiasm, as he seized the lecturer's hand and shook it warmly, "I certainly enjoyed your lecture last night very much indeed."

"I am glad you enjoyed it but I didn't see you there," said the lecturer.

"I wasn't," said the youth, "but I bought tickets for my girl's parents, and they both went."

Ike's Bright Idea

When their father died Ike, Abe and Benjamin found that he had left each of them $500. Benjamin decided to open a tailor's shop; the others thought they would wait a bit and see how he got on.

As he did quite well Abe took the shop two doors away and thinking to profit by Benjamin's success had it decorated in exactly the same style. Each bore the sign, "Mosenstein, the Famous Tailor."

After a few months the cautious Ike decided that he, too, would become a tailor. He took the shop between those of his brothers and consulted the same decorator.

"I suppose you want something striking and original?" said the decorator.

"Yes," said Ike, "I want a shop with von great big door. Over it you can write: 'Mosenstein, Tailor. MAIN ENTRANCE.'"

A Menace To Children

BY BRUCE BILDEN, M. D.
Whooping Cough is an infectious children's disease which causes almost twice as many deaths as scarlet fever.

The unpleasant features of the disease as it runs its course are sufficient reason for avoiding infection, and it is to be considered as a very serious disease in view of the fatalities.

A child infected with whooping cough usually complains first of a cold in the head, and there is at the beginning of the disease a tendency of fever, with a dry cough and running of the nose, and the eyes may appear bloodshot.

Later in the course of the disease the child will cough violently, often with a sense of suffocation, because the coughing fits follow each other in close succession. The coughing is very often so violent that the face takes on a dark flush and it generally lasts several minutes, ending in the "whoop" which gives the disease its name.

The exhausting effect of these coughing fits is one of the most disagreeable phases of the disease and in occasional cases the effects of the paroxysms are serious. Rupture of blood vessels, hemorrhage or damage to the heart are some of the more serious effects of the disease.

Children suffer acutely during these coughing spasms and they should be kept quiet while they are ill and protected from excitement liable to increase the exhaustion.

To protect the child from whooping cough he should be well fed and cared for in order that he may have a high resistance to infectious diseases in general, good health being one of the best protections against disease. He should also be taught to avoid other children with the characteristic "whoop."

While suffering from the early feverish stage, which lasts from one to two weeks, the child should be kept in bed in a well-ventilated room.

TEXACO CRATER COMPOUND
The Great Gear Lubricant

Texaco Crater Compound is a special lubricant for heavy gears and wire rope. It preserves gears; shields them from dirt and dirt, prevents friction, and eliminates machinery noise. Use "Crater" on all heavy gears working under conditions of extreme pressure. It clings to gear teeth when nothing else will, but is fluid enough to allow free lubrication.

As a preservative for wire rope and chains, Texaco Crater Compound is invaluable. It forms a film of lubricant which protects from the action of weather, chemical fumes and contaminated water.

Wire rope and chains coated with "Crater" will last twice as long.
Gears lubricated with it will work noiselessly and more efficiently.

New Assignments Of U.S. Army Officers

Secretary of War Weeks announced on June 3 a list of assignments of general officers which were to become effective on July 1, or as soon thereafter as practicable.

The assignments in the order announced follow:

Gen. John J. Pershing to be Chief of Staff of the Army.

Major Gen. James G. Harbord to be Exec. Asst. to Chief of Staff.

Major Gen. Charles G. Morton to 3d Corps Area.

Major Gen. Charles P. Summerall to Hawaiian Department.

Major Gen. Clarence R. Edwards to 1st Corps Area.

Major Gen. David C. Shanks to 1st Division.

Major Gen. William M. Wright to 9th Corps Area.

Brig. Gen. Charles J. Bailey to 7th Division.

Brig. Gen. Chas. W. Kennedy to duty with 7th Division.

Brig. Gen. Edward P. McGlachlin to be Commandant, General Service Schools, Fort Leavenworth.

Brig. Gen. William Weigel to duty with 1st Division.

Brig. Gen. Fred W. Sladen to duty with 3d Division.

Brig. Gen. Robert Alexander to duty with 3d Division.

Brig. Gen. Eli A. Helmick to duty with 6th Division.

Brig. Gen. Henry D. Todd to Coast Defenses of Manila and Subic Bay, P. I.

Brig. Gen. William H. Johnston to duty with American Forces in Germany.

General Edwards relieves General Shanks at Boston, and the latter takes command of the 1st Division, with headquarters at Camp Dix, N. J.

General Summerall's assignment to the Hawaiian Department provides the vacancy for General Shanks. General Morton is relieved from the Hawaiian Department to fill the vacancy in the 3d Corps Area, due to the assignment of Major Gen. Adelbert Cronkrite to command the Panama Canal Department. General Wright, now executive assistant to the Chief of Staff, fills the vacancy in the 9th Corps Area, since the retirement of Major Gen. Hunter Liggett.

Brig. Gen. Charles J. Bailey, announced by Secretary Weeks on April 13 as selected to fill a vacancy in the grade of major general which will occur in the current year, takes command of the 7th Corps Area, relieving Brig. Gen. Omar Bundy. General Kennedy comes from the Panama Canal Department to the 7th Division, Camp Meade, Md., relieving General McGlachlin, who goes to the General Service Schools, relieving Lieut. Col. Hugh A. Drum, whose nomination for the grade of brigadier general failed of confirmation in the 66th Congress. General Weigel goes from headquarters of 2d Corps Area, Governors Island, N. Y., to the 1st Division at Camp Dix, N. J.

General Sladen returns from duty with the American Forces in Germany to command a brigade of the 3d Division, with headquarters at Camp Pike, Ark. General Alexander also takes command of an Infantry brigade of the 3d Division, with headquarters at Camp Grant, Ill., coming from headquarters of the 6th Corps Area. General Todd goes from Camp Lewis to the Philippine Department, and General Johnston remains on duty with the American Forces in Germany.

The fact that General Harbord was announced as appointed executive assistant to the Chief of Staff, relieving General Wright, who has also been director of the Supply Division, War Department General Staff, indicates that in addition to the duties which devolved upon General Wright he will perform the detailed duties which have previously devolved upon the Chief of Staff, for Secretary Weeks was at pains in announcing the appointment of General Pershing to state that General Harbord would perform the duties now performed by General March. Having established a high standard while in command of the Service of Supply in the American Expeditionary Forces, General Harbord brings to the War Department and to his new assignment a wide knowledge of the supply functions in time of war.

The assignments of the general officers naturally aroused speculation relative to the duty which will engage the great abilities of Major Gen. Peyton C. March, Chief of Staff, when he is relieved on July 1. It is generally considered probable that he will either take command of the 6th Corps Area, relieving Major Gen. Leonard Wood, soon to retire to take up duties with the University of Pennsylvania, or to command the 8th Corps Area, now in command of Major Gen. Joseph T. Dickman, who is due for retirement in October. But there is some expectation among officers who have served under General March in the War Department General Staff that he may prefer to go on the retired list upon his own application after more than thirty-three years' service. General March's friends are inclined to believe this logical on the ground that he has already attained the pinnacle of an Army officer's ambition, that of the office of Chief of Staff during a national emergency with the rank of general, and that his greatest work has therefor been accomplished.

Exhibit Of American Architects Succeeds

Paris, July 18.—The American architectural exhibit presented at this year's French Salon under the direction of Julian Clarence Levi of New York has proved such a success that it is being continued for another month.

The exhibit probably will be sent to Strasbourg and then to Antwerp, both of which cities are planning great architectural programs for next year.
